

PIER PARK HISTORY

With all the recent skatepark construction in the greater Portland area and beyond, it's hard to believe the new Pier Park is only a year old. It seems like an institution already.

Yeah, it used to be a crappy dump built by the National Guard, but thanks to a shitload of hard work by Skaters for Portland Skateparks and our cities mayors and councilmen, not to mention some cash donations from Nike (yes, Nike!) and a public parks referendum, we now have a kick ass park. And let's not forget... DREAMLAND!!! Originally they were going to do the project at cost but city involvement (and money) made them pay prevailing wage with regulated work shifts, causing extra costs and delays. But it was worth it!

Skate and Annoy

SkateAndAnnoy.com

3439 NE Sandy Blvd-PMB#666-Portland OR 97232

Skate and Annoy

Micro: volume 3 no.1

PIER PARK'S
1ST ANNIVERSARY!

Skate and Annoy
micro: volume 3 no.1
PIER PARK'S
1ST ANNIVERSARY!
This is an experimental issue of Skate and Annoy designed to get me back in the print issue habit again. Print is a lot of fun, but it takes a butload of time and costs a bunch of money. Waahhhhh! Who cares right? Well with these micro issues I can hopefully crank them out cheap and quick, and maybe eve more often than one every three years... It ain't gonna be pretty, but then again, this issue only took two hours to make and you're already looking at it!

- Kilwag

Skate and Annoy
October 2007 ©Skate and Annoy